

“Studying in the U.S.” Webchat:
Featuring Educational Advisor Charlotte Goodwin of the Franco-American Commission

In celebration of International Education Week, Africa Regional Services and the U.S. Embassy in Paris bring you Studying in the U.S., a seventy-five minute webchat with educational advisor Charlotte Goodwin of the Franco-American Commission.

Charlotte Goodwin has been an educational adviser at the Franco-American Commission for Educational Exchange in Paris for over two years. She has a Bachelor’s degree in French and European Studies from Scripps College in Claremont, California, and a Master’s degree in European Affairs from Sciences Po Paris.

The educational advising center of the Franco-American Commission is part of the EducationUSA network, affiliated with the U.S. State Department. Its aim is to promote American higher education abroad. More information are available on the following website: www.educationusa.info

Ms. Goodwin will spend 15 minutes covering the top things students need to know about studying in the U.S., and will then respond to questions. Please be advised that the presenters will not respond to any questions regarding visas for students coming to the U.S.

Join us on Wednesday, November 17th, 2010 at 11am (Cameroon) for a webchat in English to know more about studying in the United States.

What: Webchat on studying in the United States

Where: <https://statedept.connectsolutions.com/arsparis>

When: November 17th at 11:00 am (Cameroon) for Webchat in English